Ursus minor has asked me to assure you that there is no relegation from the league this season.

And here are his picks:

Lazio - Inter 2 (1-3)
Catania - Torino X
Genoa - Reggina 1
Juventus - Parma 1
Napoli - Palermo X (1-1)

And those of his father:

Lazio - Inter 2 (1-2)
Catania - Torino 1
Genoa - Reggina 1
Juventus - Parma 1
Napoli - Palermo 1 (2-1)

And mother:

Lazio - Inter 2 (1-2)
Catania - Torino X
Genoa - Reggina 1
Juventus - Parma 1
Napoli - Palermo 2 (2-3)

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Posted by ursus arctos - 05-04-2008 20:46

I'm afraid that you are, though have just realised that yet another issue of the "ago" problem is that it is more difficult to determine such questions conclusively.

Milan are dominating Cagliari, playing one of their best matches of the season at home, and are 2-0 up. In the earlier game, Roma beat Genoa 3-2 with a De Rossi penalty in the 80th minute, after Genoa had come back from being two goals down. The pressure will be on Inter tomorrow, who have to travel to Bergamo to take on Atalanta.

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Milan win 3-1, with a brace from Pippo and one from Kaka. It could easily have been more, as without Pato they put together their most impressive home performance of the season. Too bad almost half of their season ticket holders failed to show up.

Benvenuto 6m - I am too lazy to type out your full name.

I am certain Ursus (and Ursus Minor, who is the real boss) will be delighted to have you on board.

Those of us living in Italy are a small but exclusive clique of, er, two. So you are most welcome to boost our numbers. Whereabouts are you and where do your calcio sympathies lie?

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Posted by ursus arctos - 14-04-2008 08:51

Indeed, a hearty welcome to ixmarlets.

We were away again this weekend, which meant that I didn't have to suffer the humiliation of seeing the Viola lose in person last night (I am told that they started well, but by the time that I got to a television they were being repeatedly hammered, and only Frey kept the score down to 2-0).

The week's results in full:

Juventus - Milan 1 (3-2)

Genoa - Torino 1 (3-0)
Inter - Fiorentina 1 (2-0)

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Posted by ursus arctos - 14-04-2008 10:33

A brave man indeed. I don't think we've had an admitted Juventino since voorhees threw Moggi under the bus.

PPV (short for Pietro Paolo Virdis) is an old board fixture who has drastically cut back his posting in recent months, but hates Juve even more than he loves Milan (and he loves Milan a lot more than is healthy for anyone).

I live in Milan and have Inter season tickets, but still support Fiorentina. Spangles lives in Rome and bleeds giallorosso.

Anyway, welcome again. Yer man Del Piero seems to have found the fountain of youth.

provincia di Potenza, eh, I have friends from Cerignola (or Cerignò as they will insist on calling it) which must be not too far from you. you're in the basilicata there, though, am I right?

Anyway as Ursus says, only La Maggica for me. I have a season ticket in the Sud and a nascent command of romanaccio.

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Posted by sixmartletsandaseagull - 14-04-2008 11:20

Thanks ursus arctos

During one visit to see family in Turin in the 70s we went to watch Juve train, and after, I missed out on Bettega's autograph as I was pursuing Virdis, so I hope PPV shows some mercy. I didn't get Virdis's either.

In those days in Italy you could buy small, individual chews which had a footballer's image on the wrapper. I remember being very taken by Virdis's image that summer.

I think his tache must have reminded me of my dad's, as to choose Virdis over Bettega was sheer folly, of course; for anyone let alone a Juventino. I probably should not have said that.

It is quite moving to see Del Piero return as a major force in Serie A this season, though he has had a few anonymous days, too.

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Posted by sixmartletsandaseagull - 14-04-2008 11:55

SpanglyPrincess:

Far too late to take your warm welcome away.

I spent a couple on months in 1999 in Rome and went to watch Roma on 3 occasions with some Roma friends and I like Roma, too.

Though a very big Juve man I am not too visceral about Italian football, unlike English football, which eats me up by all sorts of bitterness, angst, jealousies and joys, too.

The only teams in Italy I dislike and do not cheer in European games are Inter and Lazio.

Yes, the village/small town as it is becoming, is full of Juve, Milan and Inter fans, and a smattering of Napoli and Roma fans.

The mythical Milino's bar was again rammed with Juve and Milan fans for his great pizza and ice cream, typically average Italian lager and big screen on Saturday night.

There used to be a Club Gaetano Scirea in the village in the 70s and 80s I remember but that went 10 years or so ago.

Of course Turin and Juve owe a great deal to the blood, sweat and tears of southerners

There are too many family, personal and cultural reasons and links to Turin for me not have favoured Juve here since the mid 70s to go into now, but the choice was essentially made for me.

Cerignola is pretty near. We are in the Basilicata halfway down the Potenza to Foggia railway line and Cerignola is in the province of Foggia if I am not mistaken. We are a 1.15 hrs train trip from Foggia.

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Posted by ursus arctos - 14-04-2008 13:06

6marlets, have you seen this morning's Corriere dello Sport?

The headline is about Juve grounding their campaign in next year's Champions League on Amauri and . . .

Harry Kewell.

Ranieri has done wonders with Sissoko, but if he manages to turn Kewell into a world beater he should be working at Lourdes or Fatima instead of the Nuovo Olimpico.

Like any good Viola, I hate Juve with a passion, but genuinely welcome the arrival of someone with your perspective.

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Posted by sixmartletsandaseagull - 14-04-2008 13:30

Ursus arctos, I haven't seen the papers this morning, though not the CDS for me, I only read that bastion of wisdom and objectivity, Tuttosport!

Sissoko has been an absolute revelation and appears to have gained cult-like status in a very short time. Immense.

Amauri would be very welcome. I know Trezeguet has scored tonnes of goals for Juve, and we should be very very grateful, but he does my head in and I have long awaited his departure. I wanted to keep Kovacevic instead of him back in the day.

The reaction of Trezeguet, and was that his mum!? to his substitution on Saturday made me furious. He does one thing, a missed header from 3 yards out and is annoyed that he is taken off after 70 mins or so! It would make Juve a far more attractive team if he was replaced by Amauri for example.

Kewell, I can only imagine is the Milanese press's idea of wishful thinking. Though Kewell the player saddens me because I thought he was brilliant at Leeds.

I hope his wife's commitment to Emmerdale (I am assuming she is still in it) keeps him away, though Nedved will sadly need resting more out left, soon.

Yes, Fiorentina has it in for us, too, of course, as does everyone. We bear it with good grace, a heavy, sad sigh and the odd rescue act for people like The Great Baggio just to show there are no hard feelings!

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Posted by sixmartletsandaseagull - 14-04-2008 13:37

I think the CDS is a Roman paper, getting it mixed up with the Corriere della Sera perhaps. A Roman plot it seems then? Not that one sees conspiracies everywhere, of course.

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Posted by Nico Rijnders - 14-04-2008 13:42

I am risking quite some brickbats here, but although I wouldn't base a Champions League campaign around signing Kewell, I could see him being a reasonable bet in Serie A, depending on how Ranieri intended to use him. The pace in the PL is his real problem now and his days as a flying winger are gone, but his technique would be more suited to the game in Italy.

Even his knackered limbs might respond better to the improved climate of, er, Turin.

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Posted by Nico Rijnders - 14-04-2008 13:43

His wife left Emmerdale some years ago, I can reveal.

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Posted by sixmartletsandaseagull - 14-04-2008 14:07

I am sad, she was very good in Emmerdale. I did visit the real "Woolpack" in Escholt many years ago after a Bradford-Brighton game.

I haven't seen Kewell play for a while in truth, on the few occasions I have seen Liverpool this season he hasn't played I don't think. Is he fit? I will have to wait until the CL final to see him again this season no doubt.

After Sissoko, maybe it is a case of "In Claudio we Trust" or "Claudio knows" or something along those lines. Possibly, after the treatment of Deschamps last summer it will be thanks Claudio and hello again Marcello!

The village and those around run an annual pilgrimage to Lourdes, so perhaps I could give thanks to Claudio next summer.

I think Juve are just relieved to be "almost" in the CL next season again. I am sure Juve has been missed by all.

And this week's predictions from the ursus household.

ursus major:

Parma - Napoli X (1-1)
Atalanta - Juventus X
Sampdoria - Udinese X
Siena - Genoa 1
Torino - Inter 2 (0-1)

ursus minor:

Parma - Napoli 2 (1-3)
Atalanta - Juventus 2
Sampdoria - Udinese 1
Siena - Genoa 2

Torino - Inter 2 (0-2)

ursus mama:

Parma - Napoli X (2-2)

Atalanta - Juventus 2

Sampdoria - Udinese X

Siena - Genoa X

Torino - Inter 2 (0-2)

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Scores at half time:

Parma 1 Napoli 1

Atalanta 0 Juventus 3

Sampdoria 2 Udinese 0

Siena 0 Genoa 1

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Posted by ursus arctos - 20-04-2008 16:00

And finals:

Parma 1 Napoli 2

Atalanta 0 Juventus 4

Sampdoria 3 Udinese 0

Siena 0 Genoa 1

Parma play the last 15 minutes with 8 men after a wacky second half (Napoli also had one man and their manager sent off). Del Piero with a hat trick in Bergamo.

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Posted by ursus arctos - 20-04-2008 21:37

Torino 0 Inter 1

Inter survive some genuinely bizarre substitutions by Mancini and a very determined Toro side to extend their lead over Roma to six points with four matches left. Roma could only draw with Livorno at the Olimpico yesterday (thanks to a brilliant late free kick from Diamante), and perhaps more importantly, lost Totti for the rest of the season with an ACL injury for which he was operated on today.

Ursus minor got all five results correct this weekend, and was only denied a correct score prediction in tonight's match because Cesar (the most inexplicable of the substitutions) couldn't head into an open net from two yards out near the end.

Recall that a perfect score gets you nine points in a single giornata.

SNAI is still taking bets on who will win this competition (unlike Serie A).

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

And here are this week's matches. For the last four weeks of the season, all matches start at Sunday at 3pm absent force majeure (like the Pope visiting Genoa a few Sundays from now). As always, score predictions for the two in bold:

Fiorentina - Sampdoria (Sun 15h00)
Juventus - Lazio (Sun 15h00)
Napoli - Siena (Sun 15h00)
Palermo - Atalanta (Sun 15h00)
Udinese - Catania (Sun 15h00)

And here are ursus minor's picks:

Fiorentina - Sampdoria X
Juventus - Lazio 1 (1-0)
Napoli - Siena 1 (2-1)
Palermo - Atalanta 1
Udinese - Catania 2

And ursus mama's:
Fiorentina - Sampdoria 1

Things in Spain are bad (my sympathies there lie with Valencia). But I'm happy for Luca Toni. And Chelsea are still in the title race which I'm obliged to be happy about. So, y'know...

Re:Ursus Family Prediction League

Posted by ad hoc - 06-05-2008 12:07

Well, Bayern Munich and Real Madrid were both inevitable champions anyway, it was just a matter of when not whether. This doesn't really alter the fact that aside from Arsing Cunting Milan moving into 4th spot, this weekend was pretty damned brilliant football wise.

The only thing that makes this marginally tolerable is that there isn't a third team in the race. The "traditional" result in such cases is for Juve to sneak up from behind on the last day and steal everyone's lunch money.

We suffered some computer-related trouble that made calculating the final table more difficult than it should have been, but have finally overcome that hurdle. The last week of matches proved difficult to predict, though Otto Katz and Bogzilla shone with 6 point hauls.

And here is that table:

Ad Hoc 87

Broken Clock (TA) 84

Ursus Major 81

Jefe 80

Otto Katz 80

Big Dave's Gusset 79

Spangly Princess 79

Nil a fhios agam 75

Ursus Minor 75

Ant 259 75

Bellhaven 66

Macocho Europpy 62

Inca 52

Bogzilla 50

Ursus Mama 43

Cavalry Trousers 31

Pietro Paolo Viridis 28
Antonio Gramsci (new entrant) 15
6Martlets&aSeagull (new entrant) 14
Phoebe Disco (new entrant) 11
Noj (new entrant) 9
Dalliance 8
Jamzinho 8
Lodzubelieveit 7
Lipper 5
Nico Rijnders 4
Rick Derris 4
Trevor Hockey's Beard 3
Pawlu 3
That Lanky Swede 1

Complimenti e Congratulazioni to our worthy victor. A suitable token of his scudetto will eventually make it to the hoc homestead.

We really enjoyed doing this and hope to see all of you (and more) back for next season's competition, which should start at the end of August.
