"No surrender!
No surrender!
No surrender,
to the IRA!"

No, hang on, "we're" no there, this year, are we. As you were.

Jebe se nama za engleze
Ma jebe se nama za engleze
Nas je Bilic rok'n'rol
I mi smo zabili treci gol
Pa jebe se nama za engleze

Who gives a damn about the english
Well, who gives a damn about the english
Our Bilic is rock'n'roll
And we nailed a third to beat'em
So, who gives a damn now 'bout the english

Against Holland:
Es kommt die Zeit - hoho - in der das Wasser wieder steigt.
Comes a time - hoho- when the waters rise again.

Against Italy:

Scheiß Berlusconi!

Against England:

It's coming home...football's coming home (when playing in Germany).

Last goal in Wembley/Who scored the last goal in Wembley... (when playing in England)

Apart from that lots of "Deutschland, Deutschland...", players' names and the apparently inevitable "Sieg!" when leading.

Last goal in Wembley/Who scored the last goal in Wembley... (when playing in England)

Is it Exeter City?

I rather like the way football supporters sing about the English even when we're nowhere to be seen. It makes me feel like we're loved.

It's the exact same feeling Leeds fans get when Man United fans sing about them.

It doesn't mean they're still relevant or anything, it just makes them feel all warm and important.
